Details

Unlike standard air purifiers, which only purify the air that passes through the filter, the Panasonic Air-e Ceiling Mounted nanoe™X Generator disperses Hydroxyl radicals through the air and onto surfaces. These then travel deep into the fibres of sofas, carpets, and clothing, eliminating odours and contaminants at the source and inhibiting up to 99% of airborne viruses and bacteria.

Furthermore, the Panasonic Air-e Ceiling Mounted nanoe™X Generator has no filters to replace and no ongoing maintenance. The simple, unobtrusive design can be placed discreetly in the corner of any room, providing the air quality you need without compromising the quietness you deserve.

Important features:

Inhibits up to 99% of common viruses, mould and bacteria.

Whisper quiet at only 27 decibels.

Low power consumption.

Compact design.

No maintenance required.

Certified by the National Asthma Council of Australia's Sensitive Choice Program.

What is nanoe™X?

nanoe™X is a form of ionisation that produces Hydroxyl Radicals, which deodorises and inhibits up to 99% of common viruses, mould and bacteria, creating maximum comfort at home and improving indoor air quality. Panasonic's nanoe™X technology is certified by the National Asthma Council of Australia's Sensitive Choice Program.

Hydroxyl Radicals are naturally produced in nature and have also been at the forefront of professional cleaning and deodorising services for the past 20 years. Panasonic's nanoe™X innovations now bring nature's purification into the home.

The Panasonic Air-e Ceiling Mounted nanoe™X Generator uses a small electric current to produce tiny, nano-sized electrostatic water particles from the humidity already present in the air. These water particles contain Hydroxyl radicals, which react to hydrogen contained within the organic matter of bacteria, mould, viruses, pollen and odour compounds, altering their molecules and inhibiting them. This reaction turns the Hydroxyl radical back into pure water, which is returned to the air - creating a healthier home for you and your family.
